2. Sharing gifts with Adivasi people on occasion of Diwali Festival

Diwali is one of the important festivals in India. People decorate their houses, invite relatives, light lamps and share gifts. Adivasi people rarely celebrate such festivals. Due to poverty these people do not able to purchase sweets, clothes on the days.

Institute has N.S.S. unit comprising of yearly 100 registered students. This unit organizes versatile social activities. The purpose of such social activities is aware the young generation about their social needs and to build confidence and leadership qualities in students. Most of these activities are conducted in their adopted village. However, institute decided to expand the horizons of work of NSS unit and started this activity every year to make the students aware of the needs of the tribal community. In this initiative, the institute took the cooperation of NGOs working for tribals.
